Student Bowl Competition Official Rules

1. Introduction

The Student Bowl is a competitive event in which teams of radiography students from Tennessee Radiologic Technology programs have the opportunity to showcase their knowledge of radiography in a format similar to the "College Bowl" television show. Although the Student Bowl is not currently an annual event, (the option of having a student competition is at the discretion of the District hosting the Annual Meeting and the Education and Student Affairs Committee), it does offer a fun and educational activity for students and spectators at the Annual Meeting.

2. Teams

Each Tennessee Radiologic Technology program may enter one or two teams in the competition. Each team is composed of four players. The teams may be composed of first-year and/or second year students currently enrolled in the radiography program in any combination. In order for teams to be eligible for competition, each team must have submitted 100 questions, keyed, cut, and based on registry outline prior to competition. The original teams listed on the roster must compete together throughout the tournament. No substitutions are allowed. Students may not have completed more than eighteen months of the required educational program. The signature of a program official on the team roster shall verify eligibility of all team members based on the qualifications above. All students on each team must be current TSRT members and registered at the Annual Meeting.

3. Entry

Prior to the beginning of the competition, each team must submit to the chairman of Education and Student Affairs Committee a completed roster of players, with the signature of a program official (program director, instructor, clinical coordinator, or clinical instructor) confirming that the players are students of the program, are registered at the Annual Meeting and TSRT Members. Entries may be submitted by mail prior to the Annual Meeting, or may be hand delivered prior to the first session of competition at the Annual Meeting. (Revised 04/07)

4. Order of Play

At the first session of competition, the order of play will be determined by a random drawing and "brackets" will be constructed. The competition will be a single elimination contest in which only the winners of each round will advance to the next round. Elimination will continue until only one team has not been defeated, and that team will be declared the winner. The other team in the final round will receive second place.
